FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. HOUSE PRINCIPLES ANALYSIS:

Provide limited government – The bill establishes a pilot for foster children age six through 12 years enrolled in the Duval County school system.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

According to the Department of Children and Family Services (DCF), case plans that are developed for children in foster care contain statements related to the educational needs of those children, and the service providers are expected to work with the schools to meet these needs. However, there is currently no mechanism in place to assess the educational needs of children in foster care and to facilitate meeting those needs.

Current law requires DCF to enter into interagency agreements with the Department of Education and local school boards regarding educational issues relating to children known to the department.<sup>1</sup> District school boards are required to identify all educational and other services provided by the school and district school boards which they believe are reasonably necessary to meet the educational requirements of children known to the department.<sup>2</sup> Also, the district school board is required to provide individualized student intervention or an individual educational plan when a determination has been made through legally appropriate criteria that intervention services are required.<sup>3</sup> DCF and the district school boards are required to cooperate in accessing the appropriate services for children known to the department who have or are suspected to have a disability. This section allows the school district to share information regarding children known to the department with DCF.<sup>4</sup>

In response to the requirements of s. 39.0016, F.S., DCF reports that an interagency agreement has been reached and is currently being circulated for signatures. The parties to the agreement are the Duval County Board of Education, DCF, Family Support Services of North Florida (the community-based care lead agency for Duval County), and the Agency for Workforce Innovation. In addition, the community-based care lead agency participates in the Duval County Court Improvement Project. The issue of educational needs of children known to DCF is a standing agenda item for that group, included on the action plan for follow-up as needed. The lead agency also participates in the special work group developed by Duval County Circuit Judge David Gooding, established to improve services for foster children. This group recommended the pilot project created by this bill.

The Bill

This bill creates a Community Advisory Panel on Foster Care Pilot Program in Duval County. It provides that the purpose of the pilot program is to identify educational needs and follow-up strategies for foster children age six through 12 years enrolled in the Duval County school system. The goal of the program is to ensure that children in foster care will be tested appropriately and placed in an educational environment that optimizes their opportunities for success.

The Advisory Panel is to involve the cooperative efforts of the community-based care lead agency, case managers, the Duval County School Board, Nova Southeastern University, foster parents, the circuit court judge hearing foster care cases and, when feasible, natural parents of children in care.

The community-based care provider in Duval County is given responsibility for administering the pilot program and is directed to employ a full-time project coordinator and a full-time psychologist for the program. The chief judge for the Fourth Judicial Circuit or his or her designee is directed to create the Community Advisory Panel on Foster Care.

The chief judge responsible for dependency and adoption in the Fourth Judicial Circuit or designee is directed to appoint four members of the 15-member panel, and to chair the panel. The other members are to be selected by the Department of Children and Family Services (DCF) (four members), the county school board (four members), and the guardian ad litem program for Duval County (three members).

The bill describes the duties of the panel and of the project coordinator for the pilot project. These duties include reviewing the academic progress, behavioral issues, and attendance of each student age six to 12 who are in the foster care system in Duval County. It authorizes the panel to prioritize the referral of these children for services by assessing the severity of need and recommending that the most critical needs be addressed first. It provides that students who are failing may be referred for educational testing and for additional psychological and therapeutic counseling as recommended, or both, and that the reasons for the school failure be determined as well as any remediation needed.

It requires the development of a research component of the program. This research component, or assessment tool, must be developed by the project coordinator. The research data must be set up to link systems among providers of educational services, psychological services, case management, and the court system. The tasks to be accomplished by the designer of the assessment tool are set forth as:

- Discovery – including meeting with information technology staff from DCF, school board staff, and caseworkers;
- Development – consisting of determining the best method for data entry, the best database, and the best data format;
- Implementation – comprising completing, testing, and delivering the tool; and
- Maintenance – involving developing a maintenance plan and schedule after the initiation of the assessment methodology.

The project manager is required to submit an annual report to the court, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The bill provides that the pilot program will expire on July 1, 2009.

On March 28, 2006, the Future of Florida's Families Committee adopted a strike everything amendment that does the following:

- Restructures provisions related to the participants in the advisory panel and revises language for clarity and consistency;

- Lists additional entities participating in the pilot program, including the local school board, Nova Southeastern University, foster care and natural parents, and the circuit court judge hearing a foster care case;
- Clarifies references to the chief judge and his or her designee;
- Makes the provision relating to referrals for further educational testing and psychological treatment permissive rather than mandatory, allowing for a case-by-case determination of whether services are needed;
- Adds the State Courts Administrator and the Secretary of Children and Family Services to the list of persons receiving the annual report on the pilot program; and
- Requires the chief judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit to contract with the community-based care lead agency for services related to the program.
